Ethiopia and Denmark Sign 238.4 million USD Bilateral Development Agreement, Reinforcing a Longstanding Partnership

The Government of Ethiopia and the Royal Danish Government today formalized a significant bilateral development agreement, the Danish–Ethiopian Bilateral Development Programme for the period 2025 to 2029. The signing ceremony, held at the Ministry of Finance, signifies a deepening partnership and enduring commitment between the two nations. This ambitious five-year program, backed by a substantial contribution of USD 238.4 million, stands out as one of Denmark's largest global development aid programs.

Semereta Sewasew, State Minister of Finance, speaking on behalf of the Government of Ethiopia, offered profound gratitude for Denmark's unwavering support. "The programme we are launching today... comes at a very important time for Ethiopia. We are emerging from a difficult period of conflict and global economic challenges, and are now working hard to rebuild what has been lost—homes, livelihoods, and most importantly, hope".

Ambassador Sune Krogstrup of the Royal Danish Embassy to Ethiopia highlighted this, stating, "This is a testament to the strong bilateral relationship between Ethiopia and Denmark and the excellent partnership that we have enjoyed throughout the years".

"Our two nations have enjoyed a century of friendship with diplomatic ties dating back to 1967," State Minister Sewasew remarked, emphasizing that beyond formalities, "the relationship has been about partnership—rooted in trust, mutual respect, and a shared commitment to building a better future for our people".

The State Minister underscored the critical timing of the program. She further elaborated on the direct impact, noting, "This partnership will support some of the most vulnerable Ethiopian families who are striving to recover their livelihoods, young people who are looking to work and communities that are adapting with changes in climate". This, she added, "directly aligns with our national plan and reflects the people-centered vision we have for development in Ethiopia".

Ambassador Krogstrup expressed his delight in signing the agreement, which he confirmed was "developed in close partnership with the Ethiopian government". He noted, "Ethiopia and Denmark share many priorities, and most of them are reflected in this program". Key areas of support will include "water, electricity, agriculture, social cohesion and social safety net which is very important in these times of change".

State Minister Semereta Sewasew particularly welcomed the strong emphasis on green growth, stating it "deeply resonates with our ambitions under the Green Legacy Initiative". She explained that "whether through climate-smart agriculture, forestry integration [or] access to clean energy, your support strengthens our long-term sustainability and sovereignty ambitions". Denmark's focus on "peace, human rights, [and] social cohesion" also "speaks to the heart of our nation," especially as "Ethiopia is in the midst of a national dialogue process—bringing together diverse voices and building bridges".

The Ambassador conveyed his confidence that this program will "pave the way for an even deeper cooperation between Ethiopia and Denmark" and that the partnership "will continue to grow over the next five years". He concluded by affirming, "Ethiopia can count on the support of the government of Denmark, of the people of Denmark".

Reaffirming Ethiopia's commitment, State Minister Sewasew stated, "We are fully committed to the success of this program. We will work closely with you to ensure that these programs translate into real and lasting improvement in the lives of our people". She concluded by extending gratitude, saying, "Thank you for believing in Ethiopia".

Kenya and Ethiopia Strengthen Economic and Digital Ties at Landmark HoAGDP Meeting in Addis Ababa

High-level officials from Kenya and Ethiopia gathered today in Addis Ababa to advance the Horn of Africa Gateway Development Project (HoAGDP), a key initiative aimed at boosting infrastructure, trade, and digital connectivity across the region. Ethiopian Finance Minister Ahmed Shide highlighted the importance of these efforts, stating, “The proposed bridges at Suftu and Rhamu are more than just infrastructure—they embody our joint commitment to economic growth, cross-border trade, and job creation.” He also emphasized the importance of establishing a One-Stop Border Post (OSBP) at Rhamu to streamline customs procedures and promote efficiency.

On digital connectivity, Shide emphasized the vast opportunities ahead, noting, “We recognize the potential of extending high-capacity fiber optic infrastructure to Ethiopia, with a possible link to Djibouti. This digital backbone will boost trade, improve government services, and connect our people more efficiently.” Dr. Workineh Gebeyehu added that digital transformation is critical, pointing out that “only 23% of the Mendera Triangle currently has reliable internet access,” and stressed that the project supports ICT use for revenue collection, streamlined customs processes, and enhanced transparency.

Discussions focused on infrastructure developments, including bridge construction, Trade Facilitation Centers, and the operationalization of the OSBP—whether unilaterally or jointly. The leaders agreed on conducting site visits for optimal locations, implementing joint inspections during construction, and preparing for the official launch of these projects. Kenya committed to financing the bridge works, with joint mechanisms in place to ensure quality control.

Kenya’s Cabinet Secretary for the National Treasury, Hon. John Mbadi, expressed his enthusiasm for the partnership, remarking, “I am pleased to participate in this vital mission under the HoAGDP.” Both leaders reaffirmed their dedication to the project, which is supported by $750 million from the World Bank and targeted for completion by June 2028.

Shide emphasized the human benefits, stating, “The true beneficiaries are the communities along the border—the pastoralists, traders, youth, and families who will gain better access and opportunities.” Dr. Gebeyehu highlighted that these projects could reduce healthcare access distances by 50%, potentially saving many lives annually.

Shide reaffirmed Ethiopia’s full commitment, stating, “To our Kenyan counterparts: Ethiopia remains fully committed to this partnership. The work we undertake today will help shape a more connected, prosperous, and resilient future for both our nations and the wider Horn of Africa region.” He called for “collaboration, purpose, and determination—because together, we are not just building infrastructure; we are building the future.”

Concluding the meeting, both nations expressed a renewed commitment to building a more connected, prosperous, and resilient Horn of Africa, emphasizing that this partnership will foster regional stability and inclusive development.
